WOMAN IS BADLY BURNED; 4 TOWNS BATTLE FLAMES

More than a dozen fires in Haverhill, Watertown, Fitchburg and Natick caused heavy damage and resulted in many rescues today.

Miss Frances McIntyre, 68, of Harrison avenue, Haverhill, was the only person seriously injured. Her name is now on the danger list at City Hospital. Her injuries resulted from a wind of paper becoming ignited while she was attempting to light a kerosene lamp.

Philip McElroy, a neighbor, heard her scream and extinguished the flames, which burned her face, hands and body.

CHILDREN RESCUED

In Watertown three young children were carried to safety and eight other persons were affected by smoke when fire caused a damage of $200 to a building block and dwelling house on School street.

The children rescued are Larry Kurkjian, 10, and Morris Amazeen, 7, and Richard Amazeen, 3 years.

Patrolman William Shea and John Long carried the children to safety after working their way through the smoke-filled corridors. Fire Chief John Neary of the Natick department requested Fire Marshal Stephen Garrity to Death Wins

Superior, Ariz., Feb. 13 (AP)—Seventeen-year-old Marjorie Stoll waved to her parents as she roared past them on a highway—she on a motorcycle and they in the family car.

"Let's catch up with her," said her father.

The Stolls pursued and soon overtook the motorcycle. They found it crumpled in a ditch. Marjorie was dead.

'DOCTOR' HELD IN $1000 BAIL

Morton Stott, 27, of Commonwealth avenue, Allston, pleaded not guilty to charges of unlawfully practicing medicine and poisoning drugs, and was held in $1000 bail in Brighton court today.

Police say Stott was a salesman for a wholesale drug concern, and also assisted a Boston doctor with dressings, and thereby became known as "doctor" to his friends.

Out of his arrest yesterday a transcript arose when Harold Tyron, 22 months old, living in the same apartment house, got into Stott's room, according to police, and swallowed some pills.

27 Dead, 71 Hurt in Fires; Dance Guests in Mad Panic

Fire which swept through Lums' Club, an American restaurant last night.

Survivors of the fire, in which 27 persons were killed and 71 were injured, told how Father Time had struck the club.

The priest, who was pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Solace, was knocked to the floor and trampled in the stampede. Regaining his feet, he helped others carry several injured persons down to the street.

The din of screaming drowned his words when he pleaded with the men to be calm and help women to safety.

The priest finally helped on the sidewalk, overcome by smoke and burst. He was in a hospital today, his condition described as improving.

WOMAN TRAMPLED Mrs. Annette Johnson, 23, who conducted the hat-check booth in the restaurant, said she was trampled by a frantic man when she tried to flee down the stairway.

"I was shouting, 'Get out of my way and let me see of here!'" I took one step and then I was pushed down. I couldn't get up. The men called right over me. My head was cut so I had to have stitches taken. It all happened in a short while, I said.

As the party got underway, the fire broke out. Like a prairie fire, flames raced through colored streamers of music draped along the ceiling.

Then the panic began. Mad with fright, the crowd struggled for the narrow stairway amid sob and screams.

"I lost track of my companions," Parker said, "and a moment later I lost consciousness. I woke up in an ambulance. That's all I remember."

Police and firemen made repeated efforts to fight their way into the burning building but were repulsed by the flames and billowing smoke. For weather hampered the fire fighters by freezing, whose lines were added to the confusion.

Many victims, many of whom suffered from exposure.

One lost his life when he returned to the fire-went restaurant for the cash box after escaping safely.

Among those dangerously injured was Patrolman Anthony Bargies, badly burned on face and hands and suffering from asphyxiation and exposure.

Jersey Hotel Fire Toll Fixed at 15 Lives Lakewood, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—The death toll of the Victoria Mansion hotel fire was fixed officially at 15 today as city and county authorities began an inquiry into the holiday multiple tragedy.

As search into the blackened ruins was resumed for the bodies of the eight persons still missing, Patrolman Sturges, chief of Ocean county detectives, and local police started to question survivors of the Lincoln Hotel, where the fire broke out, about the fire.

Many doors, many of which were in three cases proved fatal. Others perished in the flames.

Three of the dead, all from New York city, were identified as Mrs. Ruth Shoen, 28, Mildred Fisher, 22, a bookkeeper, and Harry Ehrlich, 29, a furrier.

Four children's bodies were found in the smoldering ruins last night. One was identified by the father as Runya Feldman, 6, of Rockaway Beach, N. Y.

Two others were tentatively identified as Charles Abramowitz, 5, of Brooklyn, and Robert Eller, 5, whose father's business address was given as 118 Madison ave., New York.

3 Nuns Injured In Montreal Blaze Montreal, Que., Feb. 13 (US)—Fire of unknown origin swept Villa Maria convent early this morning, endangering the lives of nearly 700 students and the teaching staff.

Three nuns were injured. The fire broke out in the five-story structure shortly before 11 o'clock last night and by midnight was out of control. Students and nuns were routed from their beds.

Third Victim Dies In Tunnel Blast Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP)—Jack Smith, 27, died in a hospital today, the third victim of a dynamite explosion in a sanitary district tunnel 30 feet under the street level on the Southwest Side last night.

Two other men were still under treatment for injuries.

Girl Dies, 5 Hurt In Building Blast Mattoon, Ill., Feb. 13 (IN)—A terrific explosion rocked the downtown business district here today wrecking three buildings and causing the death of a girl and injuries at least five other persons.

The dead girl was Miss Catherine Lowmeyer, 25, clerk in an adjoining store.

P. C. HOUSING LOANS URGED

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Plans for consolidation and continuation of federal housing activities were scheduled for consideration today by President Roosevelt.

He summoned to a conference Secretary Morgenthau, Senator Wagner (D) of New York and Peter Glavin, assistant to Morgenthau, who has been making a special study of the housing situation.

Some administration advisers on housing have proposed a program based on cheap Federal loans to local communities.

Some quarters have described the program as contemplating a long range building plan, interest rates perhaps as low as 1 per cent.

Federal loans and construction facilities for as many as 1,000,000 families.

Norman Thomas' Case Continued Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP)—Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, appeared today before Magistrate Brewster Sabatino on disorderly conduct charges resulting from his leadership of a parade of strikers in support of a strike of a Brooklyn department store.

Over Thomas' protest, the case was adjourned to March 23 and he was released on his own recognizance. He had been arrested yesterday.

Boy's Missing Dog Believed Found in R. I.

It may be that sick little Jimmy Doucette will get Boosky back today after many months of grieving in fact it may likely.

Jimmy's parents, appealing to readers of the Boston Evening Globe, asked to be on the American shepherd dog, missing since last July.

David Naimish of Medford, R. I., a dog fancier, read the appeal and found he had a dog in his kennel answering the description of Jimmy's, which had strayed to his place three months ago.

He Naimish got in touch with Rhode Island police, who said there was only one thing to do. If Naimish were reasonably certain the dog he had talked with the description of Boosky, they'd have to return him, they said.

Two rat troopers were dispatched to a state sedan to Naimish's kennel. Meantime Captain Jonathan Harwood got in touch with Massachusetts state police and arranged to have his men met and directed to Jimmy's home in North Wilmington.

CONCORD FREES BANDIT TROY

After serving 19 years of a 15 to 20 years sentence for a series of holdups in Worcester and vicinity, John "Troy" Treadwell, a gang one time known as the "Boy Bandits of Worcester," was released today from Massachusetts reformatory at Concord.

Troy, who was 30 years old when sentenced, emerged from the reformatory a strapping man with an altogether different attitude than the youth who told questioners ten years ago the law did not give him a square deal.

He was met by his sister, Mary, who has visited him monthly in the Massachusetts State Prison, to which he was sentenced originally, and at Norfolk Prison Colony. It is the reformatory, where he finished the last year of his term.

They were driven away in a machine of a Worcester friend. Troy will try and reestablish himself in the community where he was reared.

Brother of Salem Mayor Promoted City Marshal John C. Marling of Salem police department today appointed Patrolman John F. Bates, brother of Mayor George Bates, to the rank of lieutenant to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Lieutenant John F. Barrett.

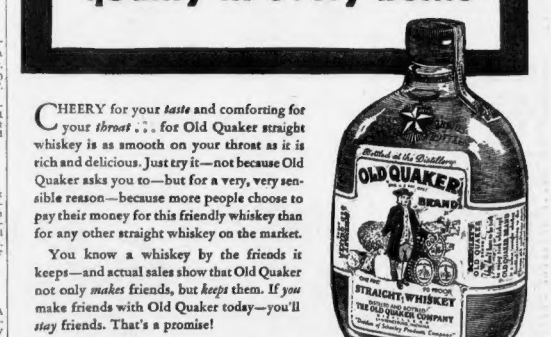

Bates has been a member of the department more than 20 years. He is a World War veteran and for some years worked in the Massachusetts National Guard.

MYSTERY NOTE CLUE IN DEATH AT PEABODY

Harvard professors, who never worked on a death mystery before, and Medical Examiner Timothy Leary of Boston, who has solved hundreds, were called upon today in a baffling Peabody case.

The note was believed to be addressed to the wife of three months. It was in the Russian dialect, or possibly none, because the bride, a Russian-Pole like her husband, could not decipher it.

ASSISTS IN AUTOPIY
Dr. Leary is assisting Medical Examiner Joseph W. P. Murphy of Peabody in an autopsy.

Police believe Grabchuck may have deliberately tried to place blame for his death on an enemy before taking his own life.

On Sunday he called at police headquarters and said: "If anything strange happens in my life, investigate it. The guilty man will be — (Because of the strange circumstances, the Boston Evening American has decided the name of the man.)"

On Monday Grabchuck stayed out of work, while his bride went to work as usual. She said he had been very affectionate.

KILLED BY GAS
The same day he was found dead in the kitchen of his home, with gas escaping from a tube nearby.

An inhaler was used in an effort to revive the man. As they were giving up their effort, Mrs. Bronislava Grabchuck, the bride, arrived home and collapsed.

Felix Chief Edward F. Pierce took the note with him, and after trying unsuccessfully to decipher it, translated the facts before district Attorney Hugh A. Gregg, who ordered an autopsy and a complete investigation.

LET KIDNEYS FLUSH OUT 3 LBS. A DAY

Clear Out 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes
Stagnant urine over 15 miles of tubes and filters in your kidneys to break the waste matter out of the blood. Kidneys should pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

When the passing of water is active, with urinating and burning, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of uric acid, backache, leg pains, loss of pep and puffiness under the eyes and disfigurement.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your body may take up uric acid and cause serious trouble. Don't wait! Ask your doctor for the medicine which has been used successfully by millions of people for the flushing of kidneys to flush out 3 pounds a day. Get on Don's Pills.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

New Cream Rouge

—FOUNDED BY JOAN BLONDELL.

By ARLINE GOULD

DAINTINESS is a quality of beauty that any woman can possess.

It is the reward for fastidious personal loveliness—the regard for the little niceties of make-up that go so far towards making up an enchanting whole.

It makes no difference whether you are retiring housewife—or one who is making away with the hearts of Congressmen or tearing through clouds in airplanes (or even building locomotives)—you've got to look always feminine these days and up to sartorial snuff.

The surprising thing about women today is this... the bigger the job and the busier the woman, the better she looks. She finds time always for the niceties, the shampoo and finger wave, time for exercises for the sake of symmetry and loveliness of form.

Take for instance the matter of rouge. Crimson cheeks are no longer in favor, yet the woman who has passed the 25 mark definitely needs a touch of color to bring out the sparkle in her eyes and accentuate her own natural coloring.

And what about the girl in her teens with a delicate pale complexion, who looks haggard and pale without a touch of artificial radiance?

Something utterly new in rouge has just arrived in Boston. It is no more like the old-fashioned cake or cream rouge we've been using for years and years than anything at all. First of all it possesses a delicate, ethereal shade suitable—yes, really—for each and every type of skin.

Virtue Is Most Priceless Possession in Every Woman's Life

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Does it pay to remain a good girl?"

This is the question a young woman puts to me today. She is the oldest of seven children and the only one in her family with a job. She is discouraged, poor child. In vain she gropes for the good things of life.

"I've read of girls offering to marry any man for a certain amount of money. I'm desperate enough to offer myself that way, but I don't know how to go about it."

She concludes her letter with that pathetic hope. For dollars she would sell herself, sacrifice everything that is dear to women and forfeit all claims to future happiness.

Dear little girl, I hope she reads the letter I've written her. I know how she feels. I realize how hopeless it seems to her. I sympathize with her willingness to give up even virtue for what she thinks might be the solution to her problem.

Her letter—I read it over and over. It brought back memories. Tears filled my eyes. I, too, suffered long ago. But God gave me the courage to fight and the will to conquer. Today, it is all over and I am happy—really, truly happy.

Virtue pays. We women must stick to the rules. They are greater, more important than anyone of us can ever hope to be. I am a winner of one-dollar prizes. The first check goes to "Mill Worker," the girl from whose letter I have quoted. The others are divided equally happy.

Tomorrow we shall have five more prizes and a lot of letters. I want everyone who has a problem to write me, and I'll do my best to drive out the darkness and restore the sunlight. And now, dear readers, here are my letters and answers for today:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: Does it pay to remain a good girl? Common sense tells me it does in most cases. But mine is exceptional, and I wonder whether the usual rules apply to me.

I am the oldest of a family of seven. The $12 salary in the shop goes to support my father and my mother. The pressure has been especially difficult for us, and my father's insistence that we children support him makes it more so.

I read of girls offering to marry any man for a certain amount of money. I am desperate enough to offer myself that way, but I don't know how to go about it. Could you advise me?

DEAR LITTLE GIRL: Resolve to remain a good girl. That is the only thing to do. Yes, I've known girls to advertise their husbands to the world, and one young woman who went to a newspaper editor, to him he gave her his job. I have seen a girl who had a story headlined something like this: GIRL FOR SALE—70 YEARS OLD.

Of course, the marriage was a disappointment. It lacked the love, understanding, sympathy that makes matrimony the beautiful thing it is. And very quickly by the aged husband woke to the fact that he had the worst of a bargain, and as much for revenge as anything else, he tightened up on the purse strings and refused to give his bride a single dollar.

No dear girl, don't entertain thoughts of selling yourself for money. It just won't work. Rather, urge your father to get a job and regain his self-respect by supporting himself. Encourage your brothers to seek work every morning. Jobs won't come of their own accord. They'll have to go after them.

And above all, remain the good girl you are. Virtue is the one investment that pays sure dividends.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I was overjoyed to read the good things you had to say about virtue. I am married to one. I know you speak the truth.

We have two lovely children, and although my husband doesn't have a large salary, he has a nice home and are very happy.

MRS. P. J. M.

MY DEAR GIRL: I am so glad you liked my advice. I was overjoyed to read the good things you had to say about virtue. I am married to one. I know you speak the truth.

We have two lovely children, and although my husband doesn't have a large salary, he has a nice home and are very happy.

MRS. P. J. M.

Dangers of Faulty Circulation

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

FOR years there has been a popular notion that many body ailments are due to disturbance of the circulation. No one can deny the importance and certainly partial truth of this statement.

Too often the sufferer does not attempt to remedy the weakness. He takes no measures to prevent the progress of the trouble with increasing damage.

Careful investigation of this problem indicates that in many instances faulty circulation can be prevented. This is only possible when proper steps are taken early in the course of the original disease.

Raynaud's disease, one such ailment, is a disturbance of the circulation. It is found to women who are overworked, undernourished, anemic or who suffer from constitutional disturbance.

It is a common complaint of persons who have cold feet and hands regardless of temperature and season of the year. In cold cases it is held at the door of a faulty circulation. But in the severe form the symptoms suggest suspicion of blood vessel disease.

The sufferer first notices a peculiar numbness of the affected extremity. This is caused by the constriction of the blood vessels. If the spasm continues there is a feeling of the hand, foot or toes as if the part had been frozen. The affected area becomes numb.

TWO MORE DAYS IN CHAPLIN CONTEST

Here are the cane. One of them is just like the one Charlie Chaplin carries in "Modern Times".

After you have made your selection, place the cane on the paper in which you have previously placed Charlie's derby and mustache. Be sure to leave room for the cane and above.

Saturday the last of Chaplin's clothing will be printed. Then it will be time for you to mail your selections to the Charlie Chaplin Contest, Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston. All entries must be in the editor's office not later than Monday, February 15.

The first prize is $25 each. The second is $10. The third, fourth, fifth and sixth are $5 each. The next 10 winners will receive checks for a dollar. And the following 20 will receive a pair of socks.

The really fine feature about this contest is that one doesn't have to possess great artistic skill. All he need do is concentrate just a little on the illustrations and make his selection carefully.

Everybody can enter this contest and complete for the 48 prizes. Except employees of the Boston Evening American and the Associated Press.

Now turn to the cane. There are three ones, and three more which are Charlie's. Decide how the cane should look. You're on the way to a prize.

U.S. to Learn How People Spend Pay

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—The government art out today to find out what people do with money.

Authorized as a PWA "white collar" project, the survey will be carried out with a peak enrollment of 400 persons from the relief rolls. They will show an average annual salary of $1,000. The information was requested by various labor groups.

Officials said it would be valuable to advertisers in that it will show what percentage of the service income goes for food, housing, wearing apparel, transportation, personal spending, recreation, savings, health, education, social activities, etc., and other things.

This survey, officials said, will cover the full income range from the most meager wage to incomes from $100 to $1,000. About that up to incomes of $1,000 or more, investigations will be made by individual experts.

Some 1915-1920 figures showed that for the period 1915-1920, the average was spent for food 18.1 for housing, 11.0 for wearing apparel, 12.1 for transportation, 9.8 for personal expenditures, 2.4 for recreation, 8.2 for savings, 3 for health, 21 direct taxes, 2.0 education, 1.8 social activities, 1.0 civil activities.

Everybody can enter this contest and complete for the 48 prizes. Except employees of the Boston Evening American and the Associated Press.

THIS IS LIFE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Robert E. Rogers

The other morning I attended the funeral of an old gentleman aged eighty-three, who for the past 15 years had been the good friend and wise physician of our family connection. His name was George Carroll Smith, a Maine boy, graduate of Colby, with rich experience in Europe, before he settled down here in Greater Boston to warned his students against too great speed

Dr. Holmes, according to Dr. Smith, was accustomed to tell his students: "When you are answering a house call, don't leap out of your buggy and run up the steps of the house. Take it slowly. The patient will wait at least that long, but if you are constantly on the jump and run, you may not!"

Worked Under Famous Neurologist, Charcot

As a young man he had had the very interesting experience of working under the famous French neurologist, Jean Martin Charcot, at the no less famous Salpêtrière in Paris. Charcot, as I understand it, was the forerunner of the modern studies of the influence of the mind on the

As regards hysteria, which he defined as a psychosis superinduced by ideation, he threw the sexual idea theory into disrepute and studied the disease in relation to hypnosis. Often I have heard Dr. Smith describe vividly how Charcot would confront patients apparently hopelessly paralyzed—like the old lady in Van Dyke's mystery story, "The Green Mirror Case"—and merely by skillful mental suggestion make them react physically in ways they did not believe possible.

These must have given Dr. Smith a sense of the importance of methods very different from those of the orthodox physician and surgeon. He was never an alarmist; he never scared his patient. He took it for granted the human body was a strong organism which, unless too long abused, could usually cure itself.

He undoubtedly knew Charcot's work on aneurisms and cerebral hemorrhages, a knowledge which contributed to his keeping my own mother with us for many years.

Never Believed in Clockwork Appointment

He was a superb raconteur with no sense except about of time. He had no use for those ten minute appointments with the patient ushered in and out by clockwork. He never made more than a few appointments for a morning and those patients would make a sort of appointment as long as he wished to keep them.

Occasionally Miss Cummins, that most admirable of secretaries, in her own right an expert about of time, would make a sort of get rid of a patient to whom the Doctor had been telling stories for an hour or more, but the patient always went away feeling that he was going to be much better just so long as he didn't insist on acting like a fool.

We always relaxed, I suspect, eating too much and the wrong things, and giving up our weight and blood pressure, but we always went back to him, confessed and were absolved, and put back upon the diet.

He was a grand old man and a great loss to his profession and to the friendliness of the world.

Recreation Is Needed By Pupils

R. I. CHILDREN "OVERSTUDY"

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 13.—Schoolchildren here have a new hero to worship. Against all the odds of probability he turns out to be the superintendent of schools, Leo M. Ferris.

For today he came out "battered" against the "over-study" on homework.

He declared in a bulletin to all teachers that the "practices of piling on the homework is making educational awakenings of our

The message stated that there should be more time for school for the recreation so greatly needed by growing children.

He has a son and two daughters in Junior High School.

The situation has certainly come right home to me. I read the bulletin I issued was pretty popular with the parents. They have been deluged with calls ever since the news got out from mothers congratulating me on the move.

"They said that their children's health was in danger of being broken down unless someone called a halt."

Superintendent Ferris doesn't mean that homework has no place in the school curriculum, but he has a new idea about how it should be handled.

Instead of each teacher taking an independent attitude about it, he said, they should stagger their assignments so that only one teacher "piles it on" at a time.

Mary Astor III 'On Location'

Tahoe City, Cal., Feb. 13 (AP)—Mary Astor, film actress, and Director Elliott Nugent were reported in

He said Nugent was seriously ill in the film company of 130, he said, was "tired."

Dr. J. H. Bernard, Truckee, Cal., said they were probably suffering from meningitis. He said the early today from Truckee behind a snow plow and took the mail boat for Brockway.

The company has plenty of provisions, except for milk and fresh vegetables.

Wamsutta Suit

By Ann Marsters

I realize that Lincoln's birthday is all over, but here it is, close on its heels, to say a few more words about that mighty, merciful man.

From various sources I have discovered the contents of several brief, characteristic notes that Lincoln's personal scribbles during his presidency.

For instance, could anything be more typical of Lincoln than a note such as this which he addressed to Secretary of War Stanton?

"I personally wish Jacob R. Fries of New Jersey to be appointed a colonel of a colored regiment, and this regardless of whether he can tell the exact shade of Julius Caesar's hair."

This was sent at auction in New York a few years ago and is now in possession of a New Jersey collector.

On a packet of letters covering a particular case he writes: "What possible injury can this lad work upon the cause of this great Union? I say let him go."

The necessity of punishing deserters was always a great cause of sorrow to Lincoln and if there were the slightest excuse, he invariably issued a pardon or reprieve. There are on record hundreds of telegrams from Lincoln to army commanders asking camps and on the battlefields reprieving or pardoning condemned soldiers.

Notes Pardoning Deserters Remarkable for Brevity

They were remarkable in their brevity and directness—such as the one which reads: "Colonel Mulligan: If you haven't shot Barney Davis yet—don't!"

One of the most interesting of the Lincoln autographic memoranda is the check for $5 which the President gave to a Negro who stopped him as he crossed the park one day and told him a pious story. So that the Negro would have no difficulty in cashing the check, Lincoln made it payable to: "Colored man with one leg."

"Your hair is brightest gold," she read, "Your eyes are knowers blue, "Your mouth is like a red rose bud, "With pearls a-peeping through..."

Then suddenly, spouting her dream of bliss, Came surer with scornful fire, Who smacked across the Valentine And threw it in the fire.

She cried and stamped her foot, this maid, So naughtily and untruly, And watched the sweet words disappear: "From one who loves you truly!"

HARVARD SMITES THE LYRE: We shall herewith give you, by bit, a list of some of the better-known poetic sons of Harvard:

Benjamin Woodbridge was Harvard's first poet, and his poem on the death of the Rev. John Cotton, in 1625, gave Benjamin Franklin the ideas of his celebrated epitaph on himself.

John Greenleaf Whittier left Harvard with a degree under his arm. So did George Santayana, Oliver Wendell Holmes and T. S. Eliot.

New State Selectees Are Going to School?

HEARST ALLEGES ROWDY—Commissioner of Public Safety, Paul Kirk, will announce within the next 10 days the opening a new State Police School for candidates who were successful in a recent civil service examination for state deputy sheriffs. This will be the first State Police detective course ever given in this state. Charming "Pat" Scharton, daughter of William R. Scharton, attorney for Falmes, has been named as a member of the class. The Harvard boys are mad about her. Sheldon Farbanks, former manager of the Boston Garments, has shipped East Porter (to Korea) for Florida. Jockey Earl Porter will be there too, to ride him. And in case you're interested in horses, Hardware is also on his way to Florida—to win money at a big horse race. There's a new dance called "The Bumps." Won't it look nice combined with "The Boston"?

WOOL MARKET

Table with 4 columns: Price, Structure, Firm, and various wool grades and prices.

By Hugh E. Bradshaw
The feature of New England business news this week is the strong position of the raw wool market.

Available supplies of domestic wool in the Boston market have been dwindling and Dun & Bradstreet report dealers are more anxious than usual to make their contracts for the western clip.

At the same time price structure and demand for the wool clip for continued restricted supply, and with mills expected to maintain their present rapid rate for some months to come, present high prices seem well to hold for an indefinite period. Happy days seem to be on the horizon for the wool clip.

What happens down Washington way are not expected to be sufficiently disturbing to domestic wool prices. As a result, the United States Bureau of Domestic Wool has been somewhat more emphatically bailed and the primary cause is the uncertainty over national development.

Wool prices have stepped along slowly in the pre-holiday season and there are some rumors that the wool clip will be somewhat larger than the clip of the year before. But whether or not it is handed down in the market, it is not expected to be a factor in the wool clip.

By R. R. Forbes
Boston and New England are waking up. I find the business spirit animating Boston today noticeably different from what it was years ago.

In those days Bostonians punctiliously impressed upon the visitor how much blue blood this, that and the next person was of the first degree, and demanded, "What's this?"

During that same visit, at a luncheon given by the mayor, attended by the bluest of New England, I had the temerity to express the conviction that the future of the nation depended more of all was a more serious and more serious of the nation's future.

Well, New England has made a reputation for itself in the past. It has been a center of the nation's future, and it has been a center of the nation's future.

From Washington came the news that the January department store sales had been the best since 1929. It was a record for the department store industry.

Perhaps foremost on the list was the news that the Federal Reserve Board had decided to raise the discount rate to 4 percent.

Within a 30-mile radius of New England's center of industrial activity, the New England area has a population of 10,000,000 people.

Addressing the Advertising Club of Boston, I could, very conscientiously, compliment New England on the fact that it has been a center of the nation's future.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

A Revere Adventure

"Quinn" Quintina Wounded as Pal's Gun Discharges

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

You know, boys and girls, sometimes it isn't what happens that constitutes an adventure but rather what doesn't.

That's the way it was with DOMINIC QUINTINA of 83 Stanton avenue, Revere. "Quinn," as they call him up Revere way, had an adventure that missed fire, so to speak. He didn't know he'd had it till it was all over. But then—well—then he knew he'd been through something.

Quinn has a pal named Al. Al lived right across the street from Quinn, and when the two of them were kids about eleven or twelve years of age they were just about inseparable. Both of them had .22-caliber rifles and their favorite sport was shooting sparrows. Or maybe I should say shooting at sparrows, because there's no record of either of them ever bringing down a bird. You know what those kids' rifles are. They're about as accurate as a circus press agent. And the best way to hit anything with them is to shoot at something else. I used to have one of the dog-gone things myself when I was a kid.

It was one hot, sweltering day in August, in the year of 1924, when Al and Quinn mixed it up with Old Lady Adventure. Quinn went over to Al's house and found him reading a detective story.

"That story must have been a corker," says Quinn. "Judging by the expression on his face. I started to pester him to come out and play. Then that Old Slurth yarn got to his imagination and he began playing he was a detective. He picked up his rifle, pointed it at me and told me to get out."

And then started one of those friendly kid scraps, where each one tries to act tougher than the other. Young Quinn figured it out that the gun couldn't be loaded or Al wouldn't be pointing it at him that way. He started walking away, with Al right behind him, holding the rifle against his back, but when he got to the gate of Al's yard he stopped and began telling Al what a bum detective he thought he would make.

Well, Al had to have some answer for that, so he began telling Quinn a few things. And then, with his mind still full of that detective story, he raised his rifle to his shoulder and pointed it at Quinn.

"The muzzle," says Quinn, "was about a foot from my head and the barrel was in a direct line with my eye. He told me to beat it or he would shoot—and—well—I didn't think the gun was loaded in the first place or he wouldn't be handling it so carelessly. And in the second place, I wasn't going to let him see that he had me scared. So I looked right down the bore of that rifle and told him to go ahead and shoot."

Neither one of those kids was going to let the other one stump him that day. Al squeezed his finger on the trigger. There was a dull click. Quinn grinned. Al couldn't fool him. He knew darned well that rifle wouldn't be loaded.

"I was glad then that I told him to shoot," Quinn says, "because if I hadn't—well—then he'd have been able to say I was afraid of his old gun, and no kid likes to admit he's afraid of anything! But after what happened later, I'm not so sure I'd ever again invite anybody to pull the trigger of a gun that was pointed in my general direction."

Well, sir, that ended the argument for the moment. Quinn gave Al the well-known horse laugh and maybe a couple of Bronx cheers in the bargain. Then he turned his back on his pal and started to walk across the street toward his own yard. When he got half way across the street he stopped and looked back. Al was standing by the gate, resting his rifle on the fence. The rifle was pointing straight at Quinn, but Quinn wasn't worrying about that now. He gave Al another Bronx cheer and then set his face toward home again.

But Quinn hadn't taken two steps when he heard a loud report... the report of a .22 rifle. At the same time he felt a stinging sensation in his right side and back. HE'D BEEN SHOT!

"I put my hand to my back," says Quinn, "and kept on walking slowly toward my house. I was more scared than hurt, because it was only scatter shot in the gun and those fine little lead pellets didn't penetrate very far. I looked back and saw Al running away, so I called to him and went back into his yard."

Al's face was white as a sheet when Quinn got to where he stood. He hadn't thought that dog-gone gun was loaded either. The two kids went inside and Quinn took off his shirt while Al washed the blood away and picked the B-B shot out of him with a needle.

"It didn't hurt much," says Quinn, "but I was weak in the knees from something else. What gave me the chills was when I remembered how I'd stood up and dared Al to shoot me while I was looking down the bore of that gun. If the firing pin hadn't been defective I'd have been blind today. And I've often thought I'd like to send the rifle manufacturer a card, thanking him for making such a rotten gun."

Well, the only safe gun is one that won't shoot at all. And the only safe bet, boys and girls, is the one you make with me. Your story against my ten. Send that yarn along. Tomorrow I'll tell you another great adventure. UNTIL THEN—Place your bet!

Floyd Gibbons, himself an adventurer of note, is never too busy to listen to the other fellow's experience. Sport Page Picture,

For the Newspapers

FIRST REQUISITE of a sport writer is cold, hard-shell impartiality and the ability to sit, detached and impersonal, on the sidelines, writing the scene as a journalistic-surgeon might perform an editorial autopsy.

But how can even a seasoned veteran in this goosiest of all writing trades stay impartial toward Jimmy Braddock in his coming fight with Joe Louis, after studying the press pictures of the champion with his small daughter, Rose Marie, a tiny querulous tot, for whose sining sake he hustled back from Florida's summer delight?

The picture shows a miniature, distraught face, pallid from recent operation, pressed tight against the tawny, gaired cheek of the champion.

Woe, frail arms clasp the size-18 neck of the world's leading mauler, whose bunch-of-banana hands hold her in a close, protective circle. A satisfied grin warps the face that has been twisted in half a hundred ring battles.

Foed for the press? Of course. Some workshop camera man said, "Hag your daddy, kid, and you, Jim, give us the dental work."

But the quiet, quizzical confidence of the papa provider and the child's hug of anxious refuge have none of the smug superficialities of a journal portrait. Childhood's need is blended with adult assurance, tenderness, like candlelight, shining behind a battered mask.

These do not pose.

Four Seconds From Ruin

FROM THE FIRST—that is, the night of June 14, 1934, when I sat under a press shelf in the Long Island Bowl, watching in a negligent way while Corn Griffith's hammer Braddock down with a full hook to the chin, I was conscious of a tragic wastefulness that is foreign to a trade whose only merchandise is bodily harm and the concentrated savagery of the primitive ape.

Braddock didn't know it then, nor did we, that, embodied in the six seconds while he crouched listening to the umpkeeper slap

ROBERT At 220 for Bout WITH COUNT

Yvon Robert, sensational young French-Canadian heavy weight wrestler, says he will scale 220 pounds when he clashes with Count Caesar Polowski in a fourth bout at a Paul Brown show at the Garden tomorrow night.

Robert has been training at 220 lbs. from the week. He has displayed great power and speed in his workouts and is confident he will be able to overcome Polowski's great strength.

Robert is all gunning for a championship match with Dan O'Mahony. He intends to keep as active in the ring as possible in the belief he will force the Irishman to meet him.

Robert's speed and spryness were evident when he saw an action at Florida. Yvon was on his feet at all times, and didn't give his sparring partners any rest.

Polowski will weigh in at 220 pounds. The 160-lb. fight is of the opinion his better fight is if he did not best for the championship.

NORWAY Wins Olympic TITLE

(Harmach-Partenkirchen, Feb. 13 (INS)—While the other nations of the world practically assumed the role of spectators, helpless to stop the landside, Norway swept through the snow for all of 35 people today and virtually closed the door upon the team championship in the winter Olympic games.

First, it scored a "double" in the 1500-meter speed skating event with Charly Mathisen and Ivar Ballangrud, each breaking the record.

Then it ran out two-thirds in the combination sk event and added another point for sixth.

I should have thought for seven different points during the games. Norway, the best American team, did not win the three points of the 500-meter race.

But the team did win the 1500-meter race. The team did win the 1500-meter race. The team did win the 1500-meter race.

He was timed today in 2:13.10 more than a second better than his previous top mark. But he was not a double champion here.

His loss in the heat in 2:20.10 and not up to top by Mathisen in 2:19.11, each a record performance. The old Olympic record was 2:28.10.

John H. H. Hoffschlager and Robert, each a sweep of the set in 1:10.00, a grand total mounting to 50 points.

The Yanks placed nowhere in the 500-meter race, but they were in the 1500-meter race, with 32.5.

The team of the event was completed in combination with yesterday's performance in the 1500-meter race. The official finish was 32.5.

Third, Harald, Norway, 4:03.4 second, Hoffschlager, Norway, 4:01.3 third, Brodahl, Norway, 4:01.3 fourth, Valheim, Finland, 4:01.3 fifth, Simonsen, Czechoslovakia, 4:01.3 sixth, Osterholt, Norway, 4:01.3.

Magnus Baiter's total was 20.5, followed by Ingvald Thurne, Norway, 20.5, in 27th place, with 20.5. In thirty-sixth place was Edward Bredal, Norway, with 20.5, while Oskar Satre, following his handiwork, was able only to finish forty-third with 27.5.

Rabbit Happy in New Position

By JOE CASHMAN
Boston has seen its last of Rabbit Maranville as a major league baseball player.

The veteran infield midget has been given his unconditional release by Bob Quinn's Reds, and has signed to manage the Elmira club of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Maranville wired Bob Quinn this morning, thanking him very much for the Reds' courtesy in releasing him so as to be able to sign as manager of Elmira. Maranville also asked Quinn to thank Boston fans for long and loyal support.

Quinn was in receipt of another telegram, one from Levi Ginzberg, president of the Elmira baseball club. Ginzberg thanked the Reds' management for their help and cooperation and stated that Maranville's coming to manage Elmira would be a great help to baseball.

The following wires were received by President Quinn this morning:

"Bob Quinn: I have just signed as manager of Elmira club. Believe that all of you have great opportunity in baseball. Appreciate your kindness. Sorry to leave Boston. Please thank fans for long and loyal support."

(Signed)
"Rabbit Maranville."

"Maranville signed as manager of Elmira tonight. Everyone appreciates very much your help and cooperation, without which this would have been impossible. Believe you have performed good service for organizing baseball."

(Signed) "Levi Ginzberg, President Elmira Baseball Club."

Maranville started his major league career with the Braves in 1912. He was shortstop of the 1914 team, which won the world championship. He played with the Braves until 1920 when he was traded to the Reds.

Bo also announced receiving the signed contract of outfielder Johnny Tyler and catcher William Buddy Lewis. Lewis was drafted by the Braves a year ago and optioned out to Montreal. Tyler was up for time at the close of the 1935 campaign and will make a firm bid for a regular berth on the squad this year.
